urgent.

Hurston said she recently had a call from a woman whose husband is being transferred to Hancock County.

"She hadn't been able to find rental housing," Hurston said, "and they were due to move in five days. So she called to ask if she couldn't move to the Bay-Waveland area, where else should she try."

"A lot of newcomers move into the area knowing they want to buy but not knowing where," Frisbie said.

"So they'll rent an apartment for six months or a year until they get a feel for the community."

Other people, Hayden said, are transferred into the area knowing they won't be staying permanently, or preferring not to spend their time on yard work and housing maintenance.

"We've got to provide shelter for people who are working for the oceanographers, secretaries from the test site, young people who haven't saved enough to buy a home yet," Frisbie said.

Hayden said she feels the Washington Street location would be excellent for nurses and other hospital personnel when the new Hancock General Hospital is constructed.

Residents from the area of the subject property have expressed concern about increased traffic congestion, increased demands on city sewage and water systems, safety and security, the type of persons who would rent the apartments and a decrease in their property value.

Frisbie mentioned several apartment complexes in residential neighborhoods—Louisville Garden Apartments, North Bay Apartments on Dunbar Avenue, McDonald Apartments on Second Street which back up to beach property, Pinecrest Manor Apartments on Lower Bay Road which back onto residential lots in Idlewood Subdivision and a retirement apartment complex at the corner of Carre Court and Third Street just off St. Charles Street.

None of these, she said, have affected the value of the surrounding property.

At the zoning commission hearing Seube Street resident Dr. A.K. Martinovich Jr. suggested that apartment complexes should be constructed in properly zoned areas.

"I want nice apartments," he said, "but I want them in properly-zoned areas."

He also said he felt the rental prices—$195 per month for one bedroom and $215 for two—indicated the project was "subsidized" housing.

But Frisbie said the proposed development, which would be FmHA financed, would not be rent subsidized by the government.

"Tenants will pay the full rent," she said.

"It sounds like low rent," Hurston said, "but if you consider the income in this area, that's in line."

And Frisbie said there aren't many properties for sale in "properly-zoned" areas.

"The only one I know of is between Dunbar Avenue and Demontluzin Street, and that site, only 150 feet wide, has been rejected because it's too narrow and too long."

Hurston said commercial shopping centers and apartment complexes are one way to provide tax revenues to maintain what we have and keep improving.

"I feel we have five people on the zoning commission working very hard, with no compensation," Hayden said.

"They're all very conscientious and not politically motivated."

"They voted unanimously, after careful consideration, to approve the zoning change," she said.

"We shouldn't have them if we're not going to listen to them."

Opponents to the zoning change say the city shouldn't have zoning ordinances if they're going to be changed.

Property owners Ruby Thomas and Paula Triche, who state they own land within a 160-foot radius of the proposed apartment complex, have filed written protests to the zoning change.

If they represent at least 20 percent of the property owners within that radius, the five-member city council will have to approve the zoning change by at least a 4-1 vote.

At the March 15 council meeting Councilman James Thrifflay read a petition opposing the zoning change signed by 62 persons, then added his own signature.

LESS FREE, LESS BRAVE

The good ol' USA—land of the free and the brave—appears to be getting less free and brave despite the irony of a tradition of intrepid independence begotten from our forefathers.

A case in point has arisen in the U.S. Congress over a piece of legislation known as the domestic content measure which, if passed, would require that all foreign cars sold in the U.S. be built with up to 90 percent American made parts.

Now that's not too different from an inclination to take one's marbles and go home, which is what some Americans want the Japanese to do with their more than competitive little cars that have swept through the American economy with no less intensity than an eastern Pacific typhoon.

So that today there are those smarting on the competitive edge of U.S.-Japanese industrial relations who want us to call off the market freedoms that made this country great and instead impose severe restrictions on our trade with Japan after they have upped their quality and competitiveness to the point that it hurts—us.

But American farmers aren't too sure it is prudent to take on a less free and brave stance. And they want the U.S. public to better understand that there are two sides to the raised questions, and both sides bear heavily on the growing problem this nation is having with trade deficits.

All this unfortunately comes amid efforts by U.S. farmers to get Japan to quit hanging so tough on their chosen restrictions against U.S. agricultural products, particularly U.S. produced beef and citrus.

Moonshadow '84 will view rare annular solar eclipse

An expedition to view a rare annular solar eclipse Wednesday, May 30, is being organized by the Louisiana Arts and Science Center Planetarium and by Space News, an internationally-distributed astronomy newsletter published in Baton Rouge.

Although partial phases of the eclipse will be visible anywhere in the United States, only observers along an extremely narrow path stretching from the Gulf of Mexico near New Orleans to the Atlantic Ocean near Richmond, Va. will be able to see the annular effect.

Center curator and Space News editor Sam Mims says that in Mississippi, the "eclipse path" includes Picayune, Caesar, Wiggins, Nicholson, Bond, Leaf and McLain.

The two-day Louisiana affair, called "Moonshadow '84," begins May 29 with a reception and registration in the main gallery at the center's Riverside Museum, where wine and cheese will be served among the sculptures and paintings.

Then participants will move into the LASC auditorium for a series of afternoon talks focusing on the eclipse.

Mims will talk about the general circumstances of the eclipse and why this one is so special.

Tom Hocking, director of the St. Charles Parish Library Planetarium, will inform eclipse watchers how to view the event safely, both with telescopes and with the eye.

Wayne Coskrey, center curator and Space News associate editor, will discuss the techniques and equipment needed to photograph the eclipse.

Moonshadow '84 participants will then be treated to a planetarium show on the solar eclipse, followed by a showing of "The Tenth Sphere," a show dealing with the possibility of a tenth planet in the solar system.

Afterwards everyone will move outside for a crawfish boil.

On Wednesday morning participants will meet at the museum to leave for Fontainebleau State Park aboard chartered buses.

The park will be one of the best sites in the world to watch the event, Mims says. When the eclipse ends shortly after noon, the group will have lunch in the park before returning to Baton Rouge.

Complete cost of the expedition is $35 per person, which includes Tuesday's crawfish boil and Wednesday's lunch, along with all transportation.

Inexpensive hotel accommodations have been arranged for out-of-town participants at the Capitol House hotel.

Mims says each person in the group will receive an eclipse watcher's kit, including maps of the path, articles on photographing and observing the event and a special aluminized mylar solar filter to watch the eclipse directly.

Because looking directly at the sun can cause permanent eye damage, special filters are needed to look at the eclipse unless some method of projection is used.

Persons interested in participating in this event can call 504/244-9465 to make reservations or write to Moonshadow '84, P.O. Box 66321, Baton Rouge, La. 70896.

Three sides of the house surround a brick courtyard. The Mississippi Gulf Coast Council of Garden Clubs' 37th annual Spring Pilgrimage opens on March 29 in Pass Christian. Other Spring Pilgrimage tours include NASA-NSTL April 4 and Bay-Waveland April 5. All tours are free and open to the public. (Staff photo by Nan Patton Ehrbright)

INDIAN HEALTH

"Nova" explores the state of medical care for America's Indian Population in "Make My People Live: The Crisis in Indian Health" at 8 p.m., Tuesday, March 27 on Mississippi ETV Television. In the documentary, "Nova" visits the Sioux, Tlingit and other Indians who, in exchange for their lands, now receive free medical care through the Indian Health Service (IHS).

The report concludes that this federal agency has undeniably helped to improve the physical health of native Americans, but services still are not adequate to cope with the demoralization caused by unemployment and poverty on most reservations.

In "Make My People Live," Indian health workers and IHS administrators talk about Indian values and a perspective of health that is distinctly different from Western medicine's.

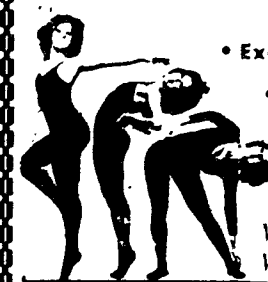

Health, they say, is a state of harmony with the environment: physical and spiritual welfare must be united.

One alcoholism worker among the Navajo suggests that this sensibility makes his people especially vulnerable to mental distress.

Despite this, Everett Rhoades, the IHS' first Indian director, maintains that American medicine as a whole stands to learn from Indian concepts of health.

Quotables by Cuevas

This is the time of the year when many folks take last year's clothing out for the change in seasons.

During this process most will find many items have become too small and a few items which are too large.

If you come up with some of clothing of no use to you any more, you may want to contribute it to Goodwill Industries or the Salvation Army.

Goodwill has a Thrift Store in the Bay Mall Shopping Center on Dunbar in Bay St. Louis and the Salvation Army's is located on US-90, Waveland West.

We visited each store this week and both are always looking for additional items including clothing.

By the way, both thrift stores right now have a wide variety of clothing at minimum prices for persons looking for some special bargains.

Thanks to Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett and Lee Taylor, Hancock County Agent, the Magnolia trees on US-90 have been fertilized.

Lynette Nybo, a member of the Hancock County Beautification committee, made the arrangements for this project and we appreciate her efforts, as well as the mayor and county agent.

There are some 30 magnolias on the Service Road in Bay St. Louis and five by the Welcome Center in Waveland.

Bennett provided the fertilizer and Taylor the application.

Through the cooperation of many persons we can make Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Hancock County more beautiful.

John Rester, president of Mobile Medic Ambulance Service, will be the guest speaker on Thursday morning at the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Morning Edition.

The event will be held at the Catfish House on US-90 in Waveland and will begin at 7:30 a.m.

We have known Rester for several years and are sure he will give an interesting talk on emergency ambulance service.

As everyone knows, Mobile Medic is very active in Hancock County and provides a vital service for it's residents.

We hope to see many of you on Thursday morning.

Q: To spur sales and traffic in my store, I'm considering several price markdowns. But I'm not sure what to reduce or how much. Any suggestions?

A: The most important suggestion: remember why you are cutting prices. Most stores invoke price reductions simply to generate cash and move backlog inventory. Obviously, you are not going to make large profits at reduced prices.

Experts do offer these hints on how to use price markdowns to your advantage:

—Avoid overused marketing techniques, such as rebates. These have pretty much outlasted their value.

—Avoid ruining a profitable, premium product by constant price reductions and sales.

Buyers know the value of many products; constant reductions may make the product "cheap" in the consumer's eye.

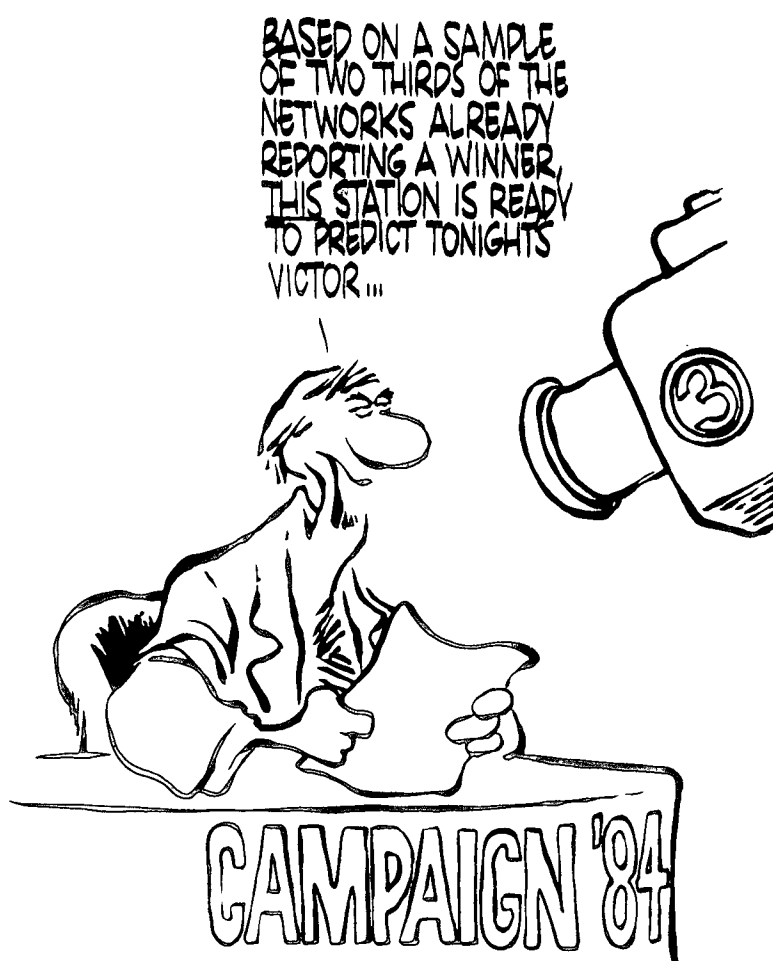

—Examine your past records and those of your competitors. If they had price reductions and you didn't, how were your sales?

—Sometimes the oldest methods are the best. Consider the use of coupons in newspapers, or two-for-one sales.

—When you make the price reductions, try to be as specific as possible. Sometimes the statement of "100 off" will attract more buyers than "10-20 percent off."

—Finally, avoid increasing the price of other products to offset the discounts you offer. Consumers have become more knowledgeable and can easily spot such tactics.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

If it concerns you, it concerns us

Public officials who take sworn responsibilities seriously should be re-elected

March 22, 1984
Editor
The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir:

I disagree with the writer in Thursday's paper who suggests the district attorney and his assistant should be voted out of office because they are enforcing the law.

By what convoluted thinking process does one come to the conclusion that a person should be fired for doing the job he has sworn to do?

Granted, the particular gambling law in question may be unpopular, but it is on the books.

Therefore, endorsement of it is not arbitrary, it is just. If we permit decision as to which law to enforce, and which to not enforce, where do we stop?

The correct approach, I believe, would be to change the law. If the author of that particular letter to the editor feels so strongly about it, that should be his approach.

Further, to state that "the consensus is that his decision was arbitrary and unnecessary" is flagrantly false.

Consensus of whom? My dictionary defines consensus as: "An opinion held by all or most; general agreement, esp. in opinion."

No one in my household was polled, nor were any acquaintances.

Frankly, I have no strong feeling one way or the other about gambling, but I do have strong feeling about elected officials and their responsibility to do the job they are supposed to do—and I will support those who do so.

Very truly yours,
Geraldine Boulet

Minister impressed by care rendered at Hancock General Hospital

Sea Coast Echo

Recently two persons in my family, including myself, have required hospitalization at Hancock General Hospital.

The service rendered by the staff was splendid. The care and concern shown by the medical personnel, as well as persons in supportive services, makes this facility more than a hospital.

They are truly rendering a ministry in our community.

Though somewhat handicapped by limited facilities, they nevertheless provide a service that is medically competent and personal.

THOUGHTS WORTH REMEMBERING

Two of America's heroes spoke to several hundred Mississippi high school students a few days ago—the subject was freedom.

The two were Col. Carlyle Harris of Tupelo and Col. George Hall of Hattiesburg, both former Air Force pilots. Harris spent eight years in an isolated prison cell in North Vietnam; Hall spent seven years as a prisoner.

Their comments to high school students came in free enterprise youth conferences sponsored by the Mississippi Economic Council's American Enterprise Center.

Here are the three statements we should all remember:

1. You don't really appreciate your freedom until you have lost it.

2. Faith in God and commitment to country enabled them to survive those years of isolation, pain, and torture in the prison camps of North Vietnam.

3. Yes, each would serve his country in the military again, taking the same risk if necessary to help preserve the freedom they now enjoy and value more than they did before the war in Vietnam.

POST OFFICE POTPOURRI

Postmaster,
Bay St. Louis

In the Sunday, March 18 edition of "The Sea Coast Echo," under the column entitled "Quotables by Cuevas," reference was made that we at the Post Office were going to enforce regulations pertaining to mailboxes.

For some reason, this has caused some confusion and misunderstanding among some of our customers.

It seems that some think that we are trying to get our customers to go to the trouble and expense of having their mailboxes replaced.

receptacle in which they can receive their mail and to locate it in such a manner that our carriers can easily identify and serve it without having to get out of their vehicle.

If your mailbox is in need of repair or is not in compliance with our very lenient requirements, you will be notified in writing as to what action needs to be taken to correct the deficiency.

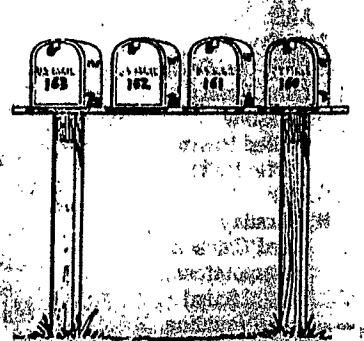

To help clarify what is generally required, the customer is referred to the enclosed illustration in this article.

Whenever possible boxes must be located so that carrier's vehicle is off pavement when serving them.

Box number must be painted on box in numbers not less than one inch high.

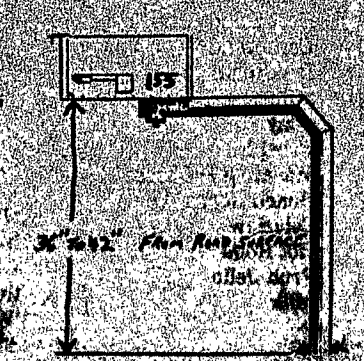

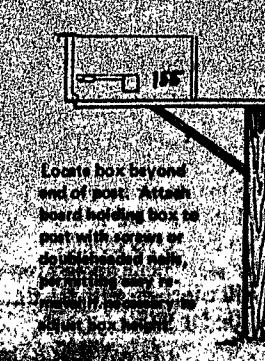

Post must be neat and of adequate strength and size.

Approach to box should be a hard level surface (gravel, cinders, stone).

Suggested installation of a single box.

Suggested installation where drainage is a problem.

IN CONGRESS

By Cong. Trent Lott

HACKING OF SOCIAL SECURITY ROLLS

U.S. Congressman Trent Lott is supporting legislation that would stop arbitrary removal of people from social security rolls.

The legislation, H.R. 3755, would also place into federal law a guarantee that disability insurance benefits would continue to be paid while a termination judgment is being appealed, at least through the administrative law judge level.

"The major purpose of this legislation is to make sure that no person loses eligibility as a result of careless or arbitrary decision-making by state or federal government," Lott said.

"By putting guidelines into public law instead of agency rules, we give them the necessary force to be administered equally across the country," he said.

The bill responds to mandatory reviews of disability insurance cases which were initially required by Congress in 1980, then accelerated to such an extent that unjustified terminations occurred.

In Mississippi, for example, more than 8,200 disability cases were reviewed in 1982, with 42 percent resulting in terminations.

Almost 2,000 of those cases, however, were re-instated after an appeals process that could take as long as a year.

While those appeals were in progress, the individual was left without benefits in many cases.

Nationally, almost two-thirds of the individuals who have their benefits cut off are re-instated after an appeal.

To correct the existing flaws in the system, H.R. 3755 seeks to make federal law out of guidelines which have been mostly administrative.

In addition to allowing continuation of benefits while a case is on appeal, the bill would:

•Set national standards for how the Social Security Administration determines eligibility policy

•Require continuation of benefits to people whose medical condition has not improved substantially, and termination of benefits to people who have shown marked medical improvement; and,

•Mandate face-to-face interviews at the state agency level in cases of medical termination.

"This legislation re-affirms that the purpose of social security disability insurance is to provide help for people who are legitimately unable to work," Lott said. The Mississippi congressman said he would continue to work for constructive changes which protect benefits for eligible individuals.

MEC

Gil Brandt, vice president of the Dallas Cowboys, will be the featured speaker when the Mississippi Economic Council holds its 35th Annual Membership Meeting on April 5.

Brandt will make the luncheon address at the Holiday Inn Downtown in Jackson.

Members of MEC, the state's largest association of business and professional leaders, will also hear Bill Simpson, a former White House aide and former administrative assistant to Senator James O. Eastland, and participate in a question-and-answer period with the Washington-based administrative assistants to the state's Congressmen.

Key state officials will also be on hand to explain the financial picture and suggest changes which must be made if the state is to advance economically.

Brandt, one of the three key executives who have been with the Dallas Cowboys since its creation in 1960, is responsible for personnel development for the professional football team.

He directs the Cowboy's continuing talent search that keeps the team at the top or near the top of the National Football League.

His luncheon address will focus on the business-management organization and operation of the Cowboys. What makes the Cowboys different from other team and from other businesses?

Why have the Cowboys succeeded when other businesses and other sports franchises have failed? Brandt will answer these and other questions from the audience when he speaks at the 12:30 p.m. luncheon.

In other program activities, Simpson and the administrative assistants will be heard in a 10:45 a.m. general session, and Mississippi's money managers will talk about the state's financial picture at a 9:30 a.m. general session.

Charles Sewell, MEC Chairman and a Jackson bank executive, will preside over the meeting.

Education Improvements Threatened

For some time now there has been a gnawing fear that full and timely implementation of the state's Education Reform Act would be threatened if not actually impaired.

Now, because of legislative action within the past few days that threat has become reality.

A committee of the House of Representatives has rejected funds for implementation of the study of consolidation of school districts.

While the study can continue, it has been wounded and weakened—a first step toward weakening of the total reform effort.

And, there are other efforts being made to delay implementation of the act, or to remove principal portions of it.

Mississippians spoke loudly and clearly about education in this state. They want better education and they want it now.

They deserve it.

And legislators and others who would deny that improvement may one day be reminded of their decision.

HE'S A STAR—Hey you, open this cage up! I've been unjustly incarcerated and you're stifling my existential being. Oh well, no one seems to appreciate the philosophical approach these days so I'll try a superficial tact. How about this? Meow-meow-meow! Hi, I'm Fritz the Cat—purr, purr, purr—a silver grey tabby about three months old with golden eyes, a red brick nose and a silky coat. Please take me home because I just love human attention... and a couple of feline females to boot wouldn't hurt either... just for a little companionship of course. Now where was I? Oh yeah. Please adopt me soon or I will be painlessly destroyed by lethal injection. (gulp!) LEFT HOMELESS—The owners of this gentle part afghan dog moved away from Bay St. Louis and thoughtlessly left the animal to fend for himself in the Gladstone Street area. But this nice fella needs a good home with a fenced yard soon or he will be painlessly destroyed by lethal injection. Federal Land Bank raises interest rate

The Federal Land Bank of New Orleans, the area's leading agricultural lending institution, has raised its interest rate on all variable rate loans by one-half of one percent. This represents the first rate increase enacted by the bank in almost two years.

The new rate which became effective on March 1 is 11-3/4 percent on farm loans, and 12 percent on rural home loans as well as farm related business and facility loans. Bank president Warner Bruner said the action became necessary due to an increase in the cost of funds in the nation's money markets.

He said the variable interest rate, which has been in effect since 1970, allows the bank to raise or lower loan interest rates to correspond with the cost of funds which the bank obtains through the sale of Federal Farm Credit Bank Securities.

Since Sept. 1, 1983, the bank sold $581 million in bonds at an average cost of 11.24 percent. The average rate on all Farm Credit Securities outstanding is more than 12 percent.

"Our goal is to provide credit at the lowest possible cost consistent with sound business practices," explained Bruner.

"The anticipated reduction in bond costs late in 1983 and early 1984 did not materialize, thus an upward adjustment in rates became necessary."

The Federal Land Bank currently has more than 38,000 loans outstanding in the states of Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana totaling $3.02 billion.

Salad bars provide necessary nutrients

By Philip R. Breeze
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

A noon or evening meal from a salad bar can provide a nutritious meal if planned properly.

For health, the daily diet must supply many kinds of nutrients such as protein, carbohydrates, fats, vitamins and minerals.

Most foods contain more than one of these nutrients, but no single food furnishes all the necessary nutrients to maintain good health. Eating a variety of foods from each of the five food groups will insure a balanced diet.

When planning a salad bar meal, consider including foods from the following food groups.

The Milk Group—The milk group provides the leading source of calcium in the diet and is an important source of riboflavin, protein, vitamin A, B-6, and B-12. An adult needs two servings from this group daily.

Milk group foods usually found on a salad bar include natural or processed cheeses such as American, cheddar, or Swiss cheese and cottage cheese. Milk may be consumed as the beverage with the salad meal.

Consuming the recommended two servings daily from the milk group provides the major source of calcium, about one-fourth of the daily protein, and nearly half of the riboflavin recommended for adults.

Vegetable and Fruit Group—The vegetable and fruit group is valuable in the diet because of the many vitamins and minerals it contributes as well as the roughage it provides.

Four servings are recommended daily from this group. One serving should be a good source of vitamin C. A good source of vitamin A also should be chosen frequently.

Citrus fruits, such as oranges, grapefruits, lemons and limes are the leading sources of vitamin C. However, a salad bar contains a variety of foods which usually supply a sufficient amount of this nutrient. These foods include grapefruit or orange segments, strawberries, cantaloupes, tomatoes, green peppers, broccoli, raw cabbage and raw spinach.

Dark green and deep yellow fruits and vegetables are important sources of vitamin A and often provide at least half the recommended amount of this nutrient. Foods from the fruit and vegetable group found on a salad bar which are important sources of vitamin A include raw spinach, carrots, yellow squash, broccoli, tomatoes and green peppers.

Additional foods which may be added to a salad for their vitamin A content are egg yolks and cheese. When preparing the salad meal, including at least one serving of a food high in each of these nutrients will contribute to a balanced meal.

The Bread and Cereal Group—The bread and cereal group which includes whole grain and enriched breads and cereals, contributes important sources of B vitamins, iron and protein to the diet. Four servings daily are recommended for the adult. The salad bar usually includes at least one item from this group such as bread, crackers, or macaroni salad.

The Meat Group—The meat group is important for the amounts and quality of protein it provides. Besides protein many foods found in this group supply iron, thiamin, riboflavin, niacin, phosphorus, zinc, B-6, and B-12. Two servings are recommended daily. Foods included in this group on the salad bar are ham, turkey, eggs, cheese, dried beans, seeds such as sunflower seeds, and occasionally peanut butter.

The Fat And Sweet Group—This group includes items on a salad bar such as oil based dressings - mayonnaise, oil and vinegar, and cream dressings - and provides a relatively low level of vitamins, minerals and proteins. They do supply vitamin E, vitamin A, and essential fatty acids. If a low calorie salad is desired, avoid the high fat and cream style dressing or decrease the amount of dressing added to the salad. For an alternate try lemon juice, red wine vinegar, or a reduced calorie salad dressing.

A well stocked salad bar will have several items from each of the above food groups. To create a nutritious meal, include a variety of items from each of the food groups. Remember that variety is the key to good nutrition, as no one food item provides all the nutrients that the body needs.

ETV Brief

MASTERPIECE THEATRE
"The Tale of Beatrix Potter," the next presentation of "Masterpiece Theatre" on Mississippi ETV, tells the life story of the author of "The Tale of Peter Rabbit," at 9 p.m., Sundays, beginning March 25.

Writer/executive producer John Hawkesworth says that he believes the stultifying pressures of Beatrix Potter's parents led her initially to write her stories as a desperate way to break loose.

"She actually left her nursery when she was 37," said Hawkesworth. The series depicts Beatrix's sad, lonely childhood. Not permitted to have friends, she spent her days painting the little furry friends she smuggled into her nursery.

She announced that Flower Show School II will be held in Long Beach April 24, 25 and 26. She said that the twin daughters, Melinda and Alison, of Mr. and Mrs. Don C. Miller of Waveland, had been chosen to receive scholarships from the Bay-Waveland Garden Club to attend the Junior Nature Camp.

THE MORMONS

Waveland Branch
Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Relief Society
The Relief Society Organization of the Waveland Ward of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will hold its weekly meeting Sunday at 11 a.m. at the chapel on McLaurin St. at Nicholson Avenue in Waveland.

The title of this week's Cultural Refinement lesson is "Order: A Refinement of Life."

"The objective of this lesson is to help women recognize the value of order in their lives," reports Elaine Ladner of Waveland.

Mrs. Ladner serves as president of the Waveland women's group and can be reached for more information at 467-5449.

"Any single woman over the age of 18 as well as any married woman who is interested is invited to attend, and a nursery will be provided for children 18 months to three years," Ladner explained.

Missionary
The area served by the Waveland Ward of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, which includes all of Hancock County and Pass Christian area, has recently received a new missionary for the church.

Nathan Nalder, 19, has joined Leonard Fish, also 19, who has been serving in this area.

These young men will spend approximately 70 hours per week helping people learn more about the gospel of Jesus Christ.

When asked about his mission, Elder Nalder said, "It has really been a great learning experience so far and has really made my testimony grow. I have one year left on my mission and I hope that I can grow and learn as much or more than I have until now."

"I wish that all young men could go on a mission and have the opportunity to grow closer to our Father in Heaven and our Savior, Jesus Christ," Nalder added.

As a special message to the residents of this area Nalder said, "I would like to congratulate the people of the South on their faith and also on their friendliness towards us. I would encourage all people to just listen to the message that we bring and give it a chance."

Like all missionaries for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Nalder receives no pay for his labors. He is instead supported entirely by savings previously accumulated and money donated by his family.

He will not serve his total 18 months in this area, however.

Transfers to different cities are made every few months by mission headquarters in Baton Rouge, La.

Nalder is from Layton, Utah, and began his mission in Baker, La.

He is a high school graduate and has completed one quarter of study at Weber State College.

In his home ward he served as first assistant to the bishop in his Priest Quorum.

Prior to his mission call, he was employed as a furniture deliveryman for Brent Allens Appliance, Furniture and Carpeting.

When he completes his mission, Nalder plans to get a college degree and then be married in the temple. His ultimate goal, says Nalder, "Is to return and live with my Heavenly Father with my future wife and my family."

Anyone wishing information on the church and its programs may contact Elder Nalder and his companion, Elder Fish, at 467-7875; or Ward Bishop Daniel Sones at 467-4834.

NSTL reviews buffer zone land policies

Officials at NSTL remind the public that the buffer zone surrounding the installation consists largely of privately owned land and that it is illegal for anyone to enter the area without permission of the individual landowners.

Anyone entering the area to hunt, cut firewood or for any other purpose without receiving appropriate authorization from the landowners will be subject to prosecution for trespassing.

The 125,327 acres of acoustical buffer zone serves to dissipate the loud, low frequency sound waves generated by static tests of large rocket propulsion systems such as those being tested for the current Space Shuttle program.

Individuals and companies own the majority of the area, while the government owns a few scattered parcels of land.

These private landowners retain all rights to their property, with the exception of constructing dwelling places or any other similar habitable structure.

Most of the buffer zone lies in Hancock County, extending north into Pearl River County and west into St. Tammany Parish in Louisiana.

The perimeter of the buffer zone is clearly marked with signs, as are the 13,400 acres of government-owned land in Hancock County where the NSTL facilities are located.

AS NASA's agent, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has the responsibility for assuring that the regulations governing the use of the buffer zone are met.

Area law enforcement officials, including sheriffs, constables and game wardens, are charged with enforcing the law as well.

Surveillance of the area is also provided by NSTL.

84 TAX RETURNS

Two special programs about filing 1984 income tax returns will air back-to-back beginning at noon, Sunday, March 25 on Mississippi ETV.

"Your Tax Return: 1984" at noon is geared towards everyone: single taxpayers as well as married couples with or without dependents. The show will give line-by-line instructions on correctly finishing the various 1040 forms and will give details about changes in the tax laws. It also will cover the deductions and credits people can take to reduce their tax liability.

At 2 p.m. "Your Tax Return: 55 and Older Update" will cover the numerous tax laws, credits and deductions that affect Americans 55 years old and older. Among the topics to be discussed are the following: the requirements for filing, since not everyone has to file a return; the extra $1,000 age exemption for citizens 65 and older; the one-time exclusion of the gain on the sale of a residence for people 55 and older; the deduction of Medicare and premiums; and special tax credits for those with low incomes.

Beginning at noon a toll-free telephone number will be available for viewers to use for their tax questions. The line will be open from noon to 3 p.m.: 800-424-1040.
